Study Law at UTS: A Fast-Track to Legal Success in Australia

The Bachelor of Laws (LLB) at the University of Technology Sydney (UTS) is one of Australia's most innovative and industry-focused law programs. Designed to go beyond traditional legal education, the program provides students with a direct and efficient pathway to becoming a lawyer, including admission to the Supreme Court of New South Wales (NSW).

Unlike many other Australian law degrees, UTS integrates Practical Legal Training (PLT) within the program through its UTS Law Practice program. This means students don't need to complete an additional PLT course after graduation, allowing them to qualify for legal practice faster. The curriculum is structured with an emphasis on experiential learning, combining theoretical foundations with real-world applications through case studies, industry projects, and live legal matters.

UTS Law graduates are highly sought after due to the program's strong industry connections with top law firms, government agencies, and corporate legal departments. This network not only enhances employability but also prepares students for the evolving legal landscape by incorporating legal technology, artificial intelligence, and digital law into the curriculum.

Practical Legal Training (PLT) is essential for law graduates in Australia to qualify for legal practice, bridging the gap between academic study and professional skills. While most students complete PLT separately, there are only five universities, including UTS, offer an integrated PLT option, allowing graduates to fast-track their admission to the legal profession

Modules to study

The Pearson Level 5 Qualification in Business Law at KCIC lays a solid groundwork in business law, finance, strategy, and management, allowing students to bypass their first year at UTS and directly enter Year 2 of the UTS Bachelor of Laws (LLB).

At UTS, learners enhance their legal knowledge through courses in contracts, torts, criminal law, and corporate law, eventually advancing to specialised subjects like intellectual property, competition law, and legal internships during their final year.

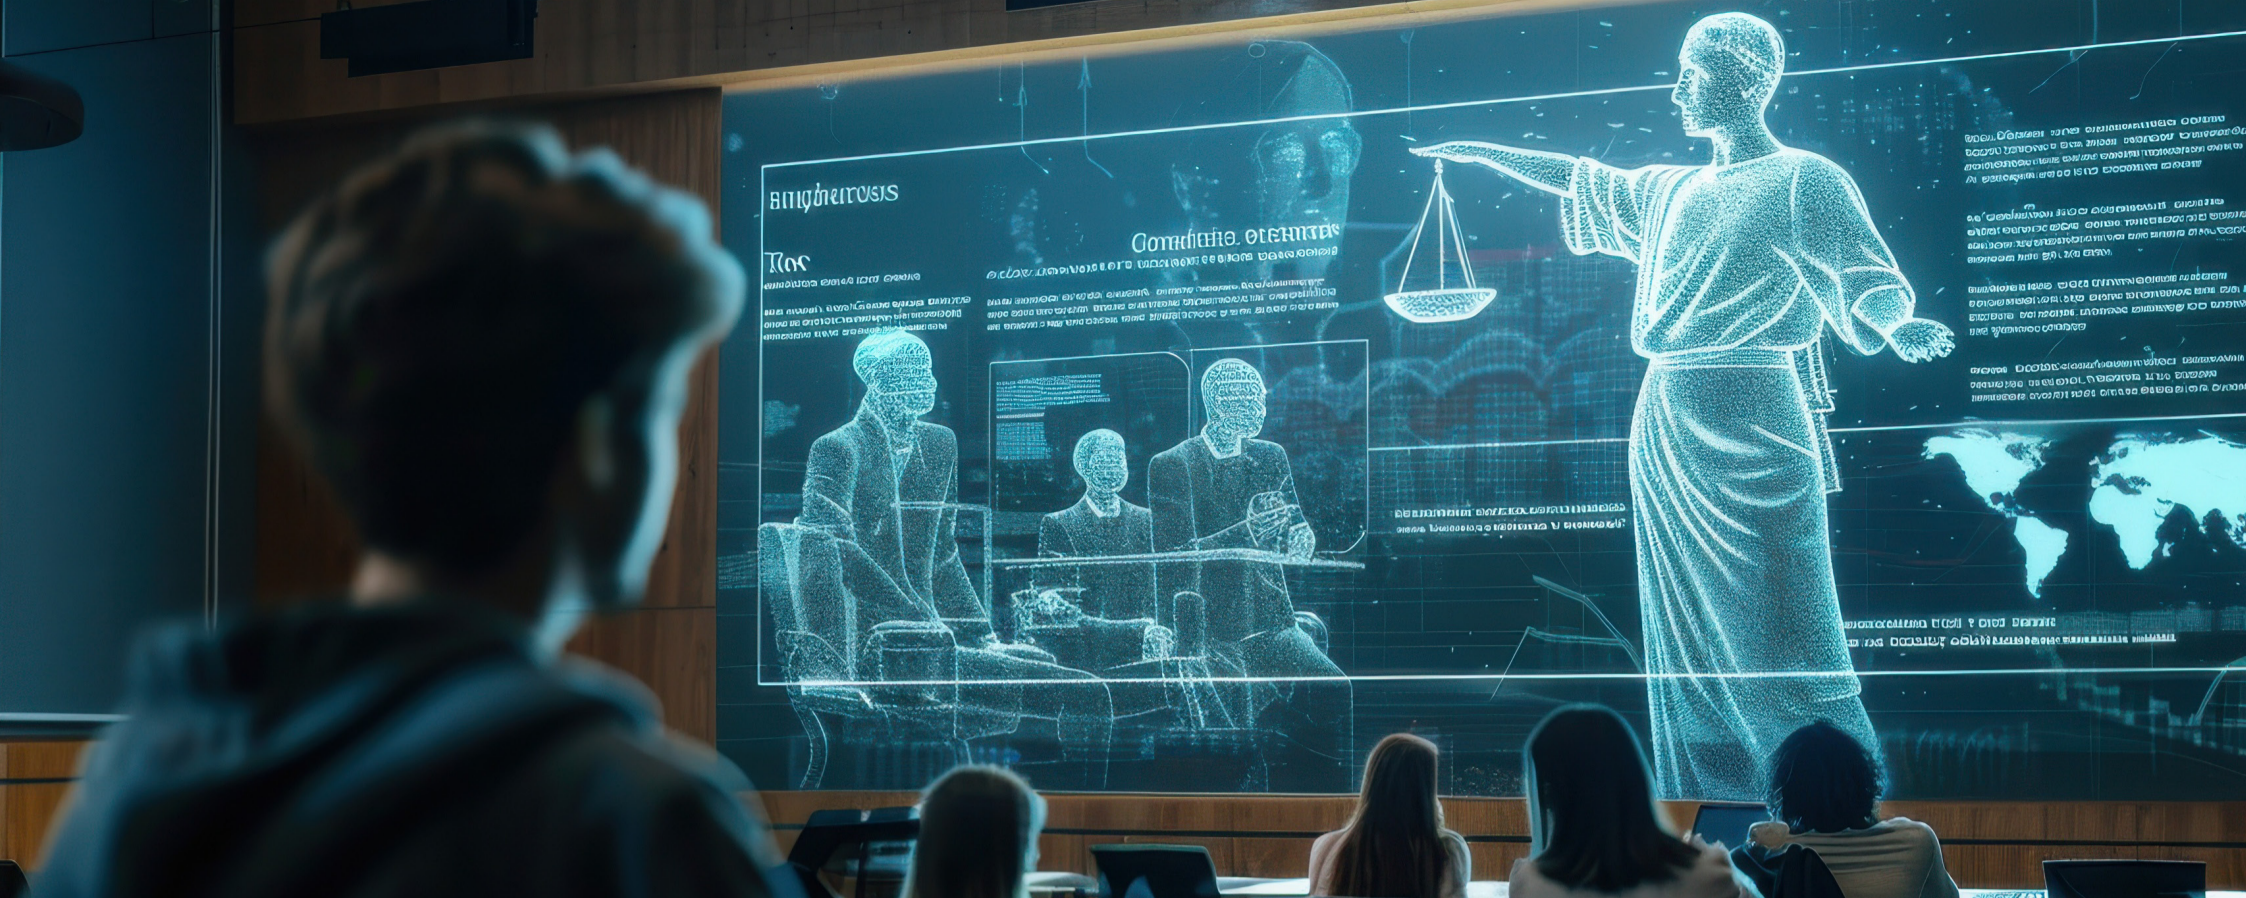

A significant benefit of UTS Law is its cohesive Practical Legal Training (PLT), which enables students to fulfill professional requirements as part of their degree. With strong industry ties, an emphasis on legal technology, and international recognition, UTS Law provides a streamlined, career-oriented legal education for various paths in corporate, commercial, and international law. UTS Law program is accredited by LPAB NSW
